

Star Trek 6

- Was filmed at my church! We are Starfleet Headquarters! We are Khitomer!

Sets were at a premium with so many films being made, and First Presbyterian Church of Hollywood (FPCH) had just built a new “Family Life Center.” It was used in the HQ scene where Kirk is appointed their “olive branch” to the Klingons. They simply stuck some Federation decals on the doors to make it look good.

I have done weddings and receptions in that same room. Spock walks in front of the fireplace. I have served breakfast and coffee in the Enterprise kitchen!!! I just remember so many computer in there ... (Why do you need a computer THAT BIG in a ship's kitchen for just 400 people?!?)

It is my impression that the assassin was staged in the very-small, very tight sound booth upstairs. And that the final group meeting where Kirk restores faith with the Klingons is that same room, redressed.

I was working on my Master's at the time, while working as well, and a friend calls me. “Are you coming into school today?” “No, I'm at work.” “Too bad. The Church campus is crawling with Klingons!
