1	wa'	6	jav
2	cha'	7	Soch
3	wej	8	chorgh
4	loS	9	Hut
5	vagh	10	wa'maH

Higher numbers are formed by adding special number-forming elements to the basic set of numbers (1-9). Thus, wa'maH ten consists of wa' one plus the number-forming element for ten, maH. Counting continues as follows:

11	wa'maH wa' (that is, ten and one)
12	wa'maH cha' (that is, ten and two)

Higher numbers are based on maH ten, vath hundred, and SaD or SanID thousand. Both SaD and SanID are equally correct for thousand, and both are used with roughly equal frequency. It is not known why this number alone has two variants.

20	cha'maH	(that is, two tens)
30	wejmaH	(that is, three tens)
100	wa'vath	(that is, one hundred)
200	cha'vath	(that is, two hundreds)
1,000	wa'SaD or	wa'SanID (that is, one thousand)
2,000	cha'SaD or	cha'SanID (that is, two thousands)

Numbers are combined as in English:

5,347	vaghSad wejvath loSmaH Soch	or vaghSanID wejvath loSmaH Soch
604	javvath loS
31	wejmaH wa'

Some of the number-forming elements for higher numbers are:

ten thousand	vetlh
hundred thousand	bIp
million	'uy'
Zero is	pagh.
